

Wilson Castleman is entering his junior year at Washington University, studying Economics in the College of Arts and Sciences and Finance in the Olin School of Business. He is from Memphis, Tennessee. Outside of school he spends a lot of time listening, playing, reading, and writing about music. His current research is under the supervision of Dr. Mark Vaughan in the Economics department, studying the economic parallels of the Great Depression and the current recession.